

Types of slag ladle for smelting furnace, made by CHAENG

CHAENG is one of the well-known large-scale steel casting enterprises in China. It manufactures large steel castings covering metallurgy, cement, forging, bridge construction and many other industries, especially in the metallurgy industry, it has been hailed as “China's slag ladle manufacturing expert”.

CHAENG is able to offer slag ladles in nearly every shape and style for a variety of mounting systems and transport methods, according to customers' drawings, utilized in BOFs (basic oxygen furnace), AODs, Electric Arc furnace and Blast Furnaces, and so on, suited for a number of processes, such as lead, aluminium, iron, steel, chrome, manganese, copper and other smelting applications.

Today, the slag ladles cast by CHAENG have been sold to many countries and regions abroad, such as: Asia (Korea, Japan, Turkey, India); America (USA, Mexico); Europe (Russia, France, Germany); Oceania (Australia); Africa (South Africa). In the quality and delivery time, we have won great recognition from customers.

